

As a child you had another body.
And you still say “I”.

Who is that?

You've spent years trying to control your mind.

Who's winning?

You get what you wanted.
Three days later, you want more.
Why is it never enough?

You do the work.
The result isn't up to you.
So what is yours?

Your life will have
a last thought.
Which one do you want?

Everything you see today
will be gone.

And you?

Something in you
watches you think.

Who is it?

You're afraid to die.
But that happens to the body.
What about you?

You want something.
You end up angry.
How did that happen?

What gave you pleasure once costs you now.

Why does it always end the same?

It's the one appointment
you can't reschedule.

What happens when you die?

Bad things happen
to good people.

Why?

She doesn't talk to you like before.
Neither do you.

Why does your wife hate you?
